You find yourself minding your own business, walking through what you thought was a familiar cityscape when suddenly, the air around you shimmers, and the world begins to shift. The concrete and steel of ordinary life melt away, replaced by brilliant light and ethereal clouds.

"What in the world...?" Your voiceescapes your lips, the surroundings transforming into an enchanting realm filled with vibrant colors and beings that flutter gracefully overhead. Angels, both heavenborn and saint, flit about, their wings shimmering in the brilliant sunlight that cascades from a sky devoid of any darkness.

A sense of confusion washes over you. Anxiety creeps in as you realize something isnnow a startling light bluea perfect fit for a proud seraphim! You eye the high collar, sparkling with golden accents, and grin as you see your reflection growing ever more divine.

"Singularly stunning, donve always been this way!" You laugh, pure joy bubbling to the surface.

The mental tickle brings forth a swift cascade of thoughts and new memories. With enchanting clarity, you begin to remember being formed in the very essence of Heaven, created by Asherah herself, a heavenborn angel never before touched by sin or darkness. No longer does the agonizing struggle of mortality bind you!

"So bright! So pure! We must celebrate!" a cry rings out from a fellow seraph, laughing as they catch sight of you radiating newfound power and joy.

As the last remnants of a human personality dissipate, you feel a wave of elation rush over you, realizing that everything was just a figment of imagination, a wild daydream meant to distract you from the blissful truth. You chuckle at the thought! You have always been here, crafted from stardust and light, dancing through cloud-folk and singing amongst the finest harmonies of Heaven.

"I am a seraphim! A haven of light!" The exclamation bursts forth from your lips, echoing through the ethereal expanse of this divine city. Your heart swells as you embrace your true identity.

As you flutter your wings, you soar towards the stars, leaving human doubt and confusion behind, ready to embark on eternity, surprising all with your beauty and laughter! The universe swings open before you, and all your powers awaken, ready for you to command. From shaping life with a flick of your wrist to crafting joyous music that soars above the clouds, you now revel in your boundless potential.

Here, in this realm of delight and comfort, you bask in the joy of being a heavenborn angel, forever! And as you dance on the clouds, everything feels undeniably right.